

Funding Opportunity for Trainees

SUMMER PROGRAM IN AGING

Longer-living older adults:

Multidisciplinary approaches to a growing area of research on aging

Dr. Janice Keefe from the Nova Scotia Centre on Aging is pleased to be hosting the CIHR-Institute of Aging Summer Program in Aging 2023.

SPA 2023 will be held from June 4-9, 2023 in Nova Scotia and the focus will be Longer-living older adults: Multidisciplinary approaches to a growing area of research on aging.

Over the course of the week, graduate students and post-doctoral fellows will have the opportunity to engage in learning sessions, experiences, and activities built around the core thematic area of longer-living older adults. They will explore fundamental topics such as research and professional skill building, grant writing, communication, inclusion and diversity, and knowledge mobilization and knowledge translation.

To further an interdisciplinary experience, trainees will benefit from networking and mentoring opportunities with leading researchers in this area.

All trainees interested in attending the CIHR-IA Summer Program in Aging must apply through the CIHR IA Funding Opportunity on ResearchNet. Selection to the program will take place through this competition.

June 4-9,
2023

SPA2023.ca

Institute of Aging
Institut du vieillessement

Centre
on Aging
Nova Scotia